Chicago had about the same temperature as Milwaukee, and St. Paul was considerably colder. ELKS OBSERVE MEMORIAL DAY

THIRTY MEMBERS OF ORDER AT-TEND CHRIST CHURCH.

REV. BARRINGTON SPEAKS

Tells in Impressive Language of the Observance of the Day by the Scottish Knights.

Throughout the country, in every city where there is a lodge of the Brotherhood of Elks, Memorial day was observed Sunday. The Janesville lodge attended Christ church in the evening, the service being given up in their honor, and listened to an appropriate address by Rev. Barrington.

About thirty members of the order, over half of the local membership, occupied seats in a body at the front of the auditorium. The short evening order of service was used, after which Rev. Barrington spoke. His address referred to the motives which make such an observance commendable, and complimented the Brotherhood of Elks on the strictness and fidelity with which they carried out the services set down for that occasion.

Used Ritualistic Form
His remarks were made more impressive by frequent quotations from the beautiful ritual set for use on such occasions. He also referred to the ceremonies which are employed by other fraternal orders who observe the same day on which honor is done to the departed members of the order.

Rev. Barrington cordially welcomed the members of the order, thanking them especially for braving the cold to attend the service. He took occasion to invite the men to come often hereafter, at times when there are not special services to attract them as a body. The support given to a clergyman, he said, is greatly enhanced when there is a large number of men in the congregation.

Commended the Order
He complimented the brotherhood of Elks for their high esteem in which they held charity, especially to widows and for the secrecy which they observe in its exercises.

This charity should extend not only to the living but to those who have passed to the grave and beyond. The order of Elks appreciates this, and it is in recognition of this that the Memorial day services are held.

A passage from the ritual was read at this point which set forth the impressive phraseology the respect and tender veneration in which the dead are to be held. The selection read also told the reverential spirit in which the day should be observed.

A Beautiful Spirit

The Brotherhood of Elks, the preacher said, is not alone in its memorial service for the dead. There had recently come to his sight an account of the mode of observance which was practiced by one of the early Scottish Masonic orders. At one point in the ceremony the master of knights, who are assembled in the chamber containing the body of the recently departed member, the hour being in the dead of the night, calls upon his fellows to tell aught of evil which they know the dead knight has committed. "One of them replies that it is not for mortal man to presume to judge the deeds of one who has passed beyond the grave."

Impressive words, Rev. Barrington went on to tell of the service. The ceremony continues, the knights taking part one after another, finally, with an eloquent supplication to God for blessing upon the deceased, the knights file out into the night.

An Excellent Motive
It is with similar motive, although less formal ceremony, that the Elks observe their memorial day. In one particular it would be well to follow the Scottish observance. Although not always practiced, and abhorrent to some, the custom of praying for the dead might well be observed. While the feeling of aversion to such a practice is natural, it is not right. It would be wrong if the memory of the departed were to pass away. To pray for them would tend to keep them ever in mind.

On many of the marble columns in the cemetery is the chiseled prayer, "Rest in Peace." That silent supplication has often brought comfort. If the prayer for the dead were to be repeated alone more often it would bring the same comfort.

Saint Augustine once said that the souls of the dead were often benefited by the piety of the living.

Faith in God
On a memorial occasion such as that observed by the Elks, eternity should be brought to mind. Eternity should not be the subject of thought only on such occasions, however. It is the things which are everlasting that can be trusted in, while the possessions that are trustworthy can bring no profit in the world hereafter.

The blessing of God is bestowed upon those whose trust is in the eternal. What the end of life may be, or when it may come is not given for men to know. When trust is placed in God the end may be looked forward to with confidence and hope.

Year, and Excellent Addresses Were Heard.

By the members of the Rock County Teachers' association, the annual meeting held at the High school building in this city Saturday was generally conceded to be the most inspiring and helpful in the history of the association. The morning session, with its addresses by Supt. E. W. Walker, of the School for the Deaf at Delavan; Inspector F. M. Jack, Madison; Principal Rudolph Karges, Orono; Miss Mary Holt, Brooklyn; and Supt. A. J. Hutton, of the State School for the Blind, afforded an educational treat which was entertaining as well as instructive.

Sectional Meetings
The four hundred teachers of the county, who were present at the meeting, found much help of practical everyday value to them in the sectional meetings to which the early afternoon was devoted. The work was divided into three sections, primary, grammar and High school, the teachers attending the meeting in which they were personally interested.

Afternoon Business Session
The general business session, with which the convention closed, was held in the assembly room at 3:30 o'clock, the principal item of business being the election of officers. A motion made by Principal H. F. Kling, of Evansville, to the effect that it be the sense of the association that no person should continue in office longer than one year, was carried.

The New Officers
Principal J. F. Healy, of Milton Junction, was elected president and Miss Hazel North, of Milton, vice president. Miss Margaret Wiekham, principal of the Parker school of Beloit, was chosen secretary and Principal Arthur Ball, of Footville, will serve the association as treasurer for the coming year.

Interesting Talks
Four ten minute talks on the past, present and future of the Rock County school by the superintendents and county superintendents elect made an interesting concluding feature of the convention. All of a speakers were at their best and their remarks were listened to with the keenest interest. A special interest was added by the fact that William Ross and David Throne, who have served the county as superintendents for the past thirteen years, retire from the position on the sixth of next January.

This was their last meeting with the teachers of the county and the feeling of mutual sorrow and regret over the severing of a relationship which has been so helpful and pleasant to both the teachers and the superintendents was very manifest.

Thirteen Years Reviewed

Mr. Ross spoke of the contrasting conditions between two schools of the county thirteen years ago and those of today. From the past he made some predictions for the future, showing where the failures of the past might lead to better conditions if they were remedied. The consolidation of schools in the rural districts is especially valuable and will result in fewer and better schools. During the past year three districts in the county have abandoned the district school and the children are being sent to the state graded schools. Mr. Ross expressed his appreciation of the many courtesies which had been extended to him during his term of office and voiced his cordial thanks to the teachers.

Thanked the Teachers
Mr. Throne also thanked the teachers for many kindnesses which had been shown him and in behalf of the retiring superintendents, so requested the teachers to show the same courtesies to the incoming officers. He assured the teachers that while he and Mr. Ross would soon retire from their official duties, they would still be county superintendents in heart and ready to assist in any way possible at any time. Mr. Throne also gave a brief history of the graded and High schools.

County is Conservative
Charles M. Hemingway was especially entertaining, his address being given in his own characteristic style with its dry humor. He emphasized the fact that the course of Rock County has always been safe and conservative rather than flashy. There have never been any sky rockets to startle the inhabitants, the tendency being rather to thorough work. He believed the safe policy for the incoming superintendents would be to follow in the path of those whom they succeeded and to build on the work of the past. He bespoke for himself and Mr. Antisdel the hearty support of the teachers.

Plea For Better Schools
O. D. Antisdel made an earnest plea for better conditions in the schools of the county. He referred to the fact that in higher educational institutions a chance is given the student for individual work and specialization. He believed if the same opportunity were afforded in the schools of the county it would be easier to keep the pupils in school. He also spoke of the need of better wages for teachers.

Creditable Music
One of the most enjoyable features of the meeting was the musical program, of which Mrs. Georgia Hyde, the musical instructor of the Janesville schools, had charge. The music of the High school orchestra and the songs by the children in several of the grade schools were greatly appreciated by the teachers and called forth many comments of hearty praise.

An Interesting Feature
In addition to these features on the general program Mrs. Hyde gave an exposition of eighth grade music in the grade sectional meeting. She was assisted by twenty-one girls from the eighth grade of the Washington school, who gave an interesting exhibition of the placing of tones and illustrated the method upon which Mrs. Hyde conducts her work. This method is based on her belief that children can be taught to sing with the same beautiful quality of voice as adults and this is one of the things which she is trying to secure in her work here. The music furnished at Saturday's convention was certainly a credit to the Janesville schools.

JANESVILLE WILL SEND IN CLAIMS

Decision on the State Championship
Among High Schools Will Be Given at Milwaukee.

President Parlin of the state board of control of interscholastic athletics has decided to defer the awarding of the state football championship until December 30. At that time the Wisconsin Teachers' association will hold its annual convention in Milwaukee and the claims of the different high schools for premier honors will be considered at that time. The coaches of the different schools have been requested to prepare written statements of the facts which their teams have set forth in their favor. Coach Norris of the Janesville team will go to Milwaukee to state in person the record of the Bower City eleven.

RUNAWAY HORSE SMASHES CUTTER

Gallops Down Main Street—Brought to Grief Near Bank—The Damage.

A runaway horse belonging to M. G. Jeffris caused its due share of attention and consternation to the few persons who were on West Milwaukee street at about half past five o'clock on Sunday afternoon. The horse was lost standing in front of Mr. Jeffris' residence in South Main street, hitched to a light cutter; it bolted up the street, rounding the corner at the Hayes block and making up West Milwaukee street.

Nearing the bridge it began to do several fancy figures with the cutter, circling telegraph poles and threatening to enter the stores on the street. When trying to go around a pole near the Merchants' and Mechanics' bank the shafts came in contact with the pole and were both broken. At the same time the harness separated, and the horse went on up the street, leaving the cutter behind. Finally the horse brought up at D. Ryan & Sons' livery stable.

MIDGETS' POLO ATTRACTS CROWD

Game Is Won by the East Side—
Lawless the Victor in the Mile Race.

There was quite a crowd in attendance at the roller rink on Saturday night called there by the mile race and the polo game between the midgets. The contestants in the race were Lawless, Delaney and Gaffey. The three were quite evenly matched and made good time, Lawless landing in first place. The polo game between the little fellows from the East and West sides was hotly contested and made plenty of fun for the spectators. The match resulted in a victory for the East Side by a score of 2 to 0. Delaney made both goals. The line up was:

EAST SIDE. Positions. WEST SIDE.

JURORS DISAGREE IN DAVIS TRIAL

They Could Not Come to a Decision
After Being Out Eight Hours.

The jury in the case of the state against Davis were unable to agree on a verdict after being out from four o'clock Saturday afternoon until near midnight. They came in about eleven o'clock and asked for advice but after another hour's wrestling with the facts decided that they could not agree and were discharged. It is understood that they stood eight for conviction and four for acquittal. The case will come up again for trial on December 15.

CARS NOW RUN BY DIFFERENT POWER

Experimental Trip Made Sunday
Evening, and Current Found
To Be Much Stronger.

Power was supplied to the street railway by the electric company for the first time on Sunday evening. All day the cars remained in the barns while the final connections were being made. On Saturday the cable leading from the central power house was being connected with the trolley wire. The remaining operations were completed yesterday. At about six o'clock in the evening the cars were brought out and in order to make a test of the power of the current three cars were run up the East Milwaukee street hill close together. A great improvement was immediately noticeable.

ATTENDED CHURCH DEDICATION

Rev. J. H. Tippet Preached at Green
Bay Sunday Morning

Rev. J. H. Tippet, pastor of Court street M. E. church was in Green Bay, Sunday to attend the dedication of the Green Bay Methodist Episcopal church. Rev. Tippet was formerly pastor of the church and the church desired the presence of all its former spiritual leaders at the dedication of the new edifice. Rev. Tippet was honored by being selected to deliver the sermon at the morning service.

AN ABLE SERMON ON TEMPERANCE

PREACHED BY DR. HENRY COLE-MAN, OF MILWAUKEE.

AT COURT STREET M. E. CHURCH

Work of the Anti-Saloon League Is Presented, and Several Members Secured.

In the absence of the Rev. J. H. Tippet from the city, the pulpit at the Court Street M. E. church was filled both Sunday morning and evening by Rev. Henry Coleman, D. D., of Milwaukee. At the morning service Dr. Coleman gave a stirring temperance address and in the evening he spoke of the triumph of the immaterial over the material, the spiritual over the physical with sidelights on faith cure and mind cure.

The Church and Temperance
For the text of his temperance address, Dr. Coleman chose a part of the fifteenth verse of the third chapter of first Timothy, "the church of the living God, the pillar and ground of the truth." The speaker found the application of these words to his subject in the fact that the use of or abstinence from alcoholic stimulants has to do with man's moral and spiritual life.

The church has proved itself to be the pillar and ground of temperance, truth and the power behind all temperance movements. From the earliest history of this country, the church has been the leader in temperance reform. The first temperance document ever printed was a sermon and it was from the printed sermons of the early ministers that temperance orators gleaned their material for many years.

History of Movement

The speaker mentioned briefly how the Presbyterians, Methodists and Baptists took their stand for temperance early in the eighteenth century. There were other voices than the churches raised against the liquor evil but they were very few. It is true that the greatest temperance movement of the past century, the Washingtonian, began in a drinking place among drinking people but when they started to carry on the work they did not go to the saloons but to the churches. When they began to denounce the church because everyone did not follow their methods, the movement fell, just as others have.

Work of The Church

After considering what the church has done for temperance the speaker turned his attention to what it is doing. The Methodists lead in the work the principle of which is prohibition for the nation and total abstinence for the individual. While it may be true that the pulpit does not speak often enough or that it sometimes speaks too often, there is reason for thankfulness in the fact that the pulpit speaks.

Some Reforming Influences

Then there is an immense amount of temperance work done through the religious press and through the W. C. T. U. A mighty force for the salvation of the young boys and girls is the information and teaching given out through the Junior and Senior Young People's societies of the church. Another power is the influence of the example of the millions of church members. True, there are some who have liquors on their sideboards or in their cellars who dodge into saloons when they think that they are not seen by fellow Christians but they are few and are held in general scorn. It is true that the church often gives pats or rebuke when it ought to strike with the strength of a Hercules, whispers when it ought to thunder and creeps when it ought to run. Notwithstanding this, God has put on the church the responsibility of driving out the licensed saloon during the first half of the twentieth century and the speaker believed it would be done.

Some Statistics

The statement that this country leads the world in drunkenness is not true. Statistics prove that France leads the world with a percentage of 32.6 per capita. Great Britain ranks second with a percentage of 32.2 and Germany which comes third, has a percentage of 14.95. Americans are forging ahead in industrial and commercial pursuits simply because the men do not drink so much.

Sentiment Against Saloon

Public sentiment in America is strongly against the saloon. An American does not wish to conduct one unless he has another business, such as a hotel or a drug store, in front of it. Foreigners are fast becoming Americans and are learning that saloon keeping is not regarded as an honorable business.

In the last legislature there was only one member in the assembly who was a saloon keeper and one brewer in the senate. The assemblyman registered himself as a restaurant keeper and the brewer gave his business as a farmer. This is an eloquent testimony of the power of public sentiment against the saloon.

God is marching on and his reforms are coming. They come easily when people follow his commands and sometimes they come terribly when God's people are lax and force him to reach out his arm, as in the instance of slavery.

Kinds of Work

There are two lines of temperance effort, legislative and personal work. Nine tenths of the work which has been done has been accomplished by instruction and personal appeal. Legislative work has a large place but the other plan is the one to be excited. No person has a right to say that he has nothing to do with politics, when politics means government. No American has a right to claim patriotic blood when he is indifferent to his political duty.

The Anti-Saloon League

Dr. Coleman then spoke briefly of the Anti-Saloon league, which was organized in Ohio nine years ago and in which the speaker is actively interested. He spoke of its value as a furnishing organized effort to stand behind personal work. Much is done to stimulate public sentiment by the distribution of literature. Many of the churches have endorsed the league as their line of temperance work and business men declare it to be practical.

Members Solicited

At the close of the sermon an opportunity was given all present to become members of the Anti-Saloon league and contribute to its support. A number of names were secured.

CONFESSONAL IS OF GOTHIC STYLE

Latest Addition to St. Mary's Church
Is of Elegant Design and Perfect Workmanship.

At St. Mary's church on Sunday morning the new confessional was seen by the congregation for the first time. It is still unfinished but the elegance of the design can readily be seen in its present condition. Quartersawed oak is the material of which it is constructed, and the workmanship is of a high grade. It is of Gothic architecture to harmonize with the woodwork of the church and will be finished in the same style as the other woodwork. The makers are the Dubuque Altar company, the same firm which built the beautiful altar rail. The confessional is of a convenient pattern with three compartments.

MEN HAVE GONE TO WINDY CITY

Western Union Gang Finished Work
New Field.

Both gangs of Western Union linemen which were employed in this city left for Chicago on Sunday. The work in this immediate section has been completed on the company's wires, and operations will be transferred to other fields. The Wisconsin Telephone company's force are still at work on the lines toward Johnsonston. The Badger State company's wires to Madison and Clinton are still disconnected, and those places can be reached only by a round about course.

In Madison several hundred phones of that company's exchange were shut off by the storm and the city is naturally in great distress. Bert Nelson and Bert Lemon, two of the local linemen went to the Capital City Saturday to aid in repairing the lines. They will remain until the immediate damage done by the storm has been repaired.

Chicago Trotting Association Board
Gives a Favorable Decision on Race Track Protest Case.

Two hundred race track cases were heard and disposed of last week by the board of appeals of the American Trotting Association, which met at Chicago and the board of review of the National Trotting association which met at New York. This included practically all of the cases which had come up during the summer racing season which has been just brought to an end.

Among the cases was that of J. L. Fisher of Janesville and the chestnut gelding, Frank E., against the Winnebago County Agricultural and Horticultural association of Oshkosh. The case was that of a protested collection and was decided in favor of the protestant. It was ordered that the money be returned to the protestant and that the gelding and his owner, George Oakenhauser, remain suspended until the entry fee is paid.

LEADERS IN THE FINANCIAL WORLD

Wall Street Has History Inside Itself in the Daily Doings.

New York.—The late Jay Gould was a man of small stature and physically insignificant—except for a wonderful head. An enemy met him one day in Exchange Place and instead of pummeling him, as might have been done with a large man, he laid hold of the market wizard's collar, whisked him off his feet and dropped him down an arway. Gould got briskly up and without stopping to brush himself off rushed back to his office and began to sell the enemy's stocks causing almost a panic in the market. This happened in the day when men carried personal prejudices into their market operations. Men have not changed, but Wall street's methods have, and greatly too, since then. The stock market is no longer swayed to any extent by personalities. Years ago James R. Keene was having trouble with the manipulation of a certain stock. Turning to one of his brokers he asked angrily, "Who's selling that stock?" the broker said it was Addison Gamack who was doing it. "What," shouted Keene, "that nigger trader! I'll send him back to New Orleans broke." Somebody told Gamack that Keene had called him a "nigger trader." Did he say that to Keene? Gamack said: "Before I'm done with him he will be begging a pass back to San Francisco." And they hammered each other's stocks to great mutual loss without either one doing what he threatened to do. The stock market meanwhile was in a fine turmoil. A thing like that could hardly happen today. Wall street sentiment would not tolerate it. Some one bigger than either of the belligerents would promptly step in to prevent the market from being unnecessarily disturbed. These reflections have just been borne home to the Wall street community through the failure of the row between George Gould on one side and E. H. Harriman and Edwin Hawley on the other, over Colorado fuel, to entail any perceptible disturbance in the stock market. These men, hitherto closely associated in numerous financial and speculative undertakings, suddenly fell out about Colorado fuel and iron proxies and fell, also, to calling each other names. Messrs. Harriman and Hawley charged treachery against Gould and Mr. Gould charged even more serious things against his former associates. It looked very ugly for a little while, but even as Wall street stood expectantly waiting to see Harriman and Hawley attack Gould's Missouri Pacific and to see Gould attack Harriman's Union Pacific or Hawley's Colorado Southern, assurances came from either side that the quarrel would be confined strictly to Colorado fuel. Of course many traders returned calmly to their own concerns and gave the matter no further consideration, but thoughtful observers were not mindful therein was given striking proof that a new order prevails in the financial world. Men can no longer afford to visit their spleen upon each other by way of the stock market to the great and permanent injury of the greatest number that have no interest or part in the quarrel at all.

That Fuel Row
It is quite probable, however, that more will yet be heard of this Colorado fuel row. The deferred annual meeting will be held on December 10 at Denver, Colorado. It appears now that President Osgood is likely to command the support of Mr. Gould and thus retain control of the property, but Wall street has learned that it is not safe to forecast the results of a Colorado fuel and iron meeting. Last summer it seemed very plain that John W. Gates backed by the Hawley-Blair-Mitchell interests was going to oust Osgood, but the opposition plans went astray at the last moment. There is reason to believe that when John W. Gates and his friends set out to get control of the property the intention was to turn it over to the United States Steel corporation at a price. The Hawley people are understood to have joined in without being fully aware of the situation, thinking it an attractive speculative proposition. It was at about this time that Osgood went to George Gould and showed him that his Denver & Rio Grande was so dependent upon the Colorado Fuel & Iron for tonnage, that it could not pay dividends without it. Mr. Gould, it seems had never before looked at it in this light. He became deeply interested in the future of the Colorado Fuel company and began to buy the stock for protection. It was at about this time too, that Edwin Hawley got control of the Colorado Southern, and Osgood also demonstrated to him that railroad was also heavily dependent upon the Colorado Fuel & Iron company's tonnage. That put the thing in a new light to Hawley. There was some danger that if the United States Steel corporation bought the Colorado Fuel company's property it might dismantle the mills. So after the Gates party failed in its purpose to get control of the company, Gould and Hawley got together and Wall street believed that they would oust Osgood and hold the Colorado Fuel company for the mutual benefit of the Colorado Southern and the Denver & Rio Grande. Matters seemed to be shaping that way when the row broke so unexpectedly upon Wall street. The rest remains to be written.

E. H. Harriman is commonly called a disagreeable man. From all ports he must be a very difficult man to get along with. He is a great railroad man but he is not the great master financier the world thinks he is. It is mostly other people's money and property that he has managed. Formerly he was considered to have the Standard Oil party at his back but George Gould appears to have supplanted him in that quarter, and now his (Harriman's) chief financial backing is Kuhn, Loeb & Co. and Jacob Schiff. It is a notable fact that George Gould's influence in the Rockefeller party has been growing rapidly ever since the Northern Pacific panic of May 9, 1901. Harriman and Jacob Schiff engineered the Northern Pacific corner, which was a disastrous thing for a great many people and embittered many hearts toward the Harriman-Schiff crowd. Something may be guessed from the change that has occurred in Harriman's relations with the Rockefeller party when it is considered that only last autumn the St. Paul, now to all intents a Rockefeller road, had to club the Union Pacific, Harriman's road, into giving it satisfactorily traffic facilities to the Pacific coast. St. Paul's club was the covert threat to build to the Pacific. There are some very competent critics who believe that the Colorado Fuel row was but the outcropping of a quiet campaign to relegate Mr. Harriman to a lesser plane. Only time can show whether this theory is correct.

Gould's Name
Gould's name has been paramount in the stock market world for a fortnight or more—the Manhattan deal would alone have been enough to make it so. It would be difficult to conceive of a transaction that would have astonished Wall street more than the leasing of the Manhattan to the Interborough company or Subway people. After the famous market coup by which Jay Gould got control of the Manhattan property he became his most cherished possession and he handled it down to his children as such. It has always been believed that the Gould family would refuse to part with Manhattan on any terms, but there they have leased it for 999 years, accepting as rental its net earnings for four years and after that a guarantee of 7 per cent. August Belmont who has financed the construction of the great subway and who is president of the Interborough company, gave out an interview after the Manhattan deal was closed which must have occasioned the Goulds no end of chagrin. He said that he hadn't decided yet whom he should make president of the Manhattan when it came formally under his control, but that anyway it didn't matter much. He might make an office boy president.

George Gould is as democratic a man as you could wish to meet. He is an enthusiastic athlete, particularly fond of polo. His stable of polo ponies is about the finest in the land. He loves to play the game or play at it with his two boys. He is intensely domestic and when near Wall street or somewhere through the country on business bent, he is most always to be found at home with his horses or boys. In appearance he is the New York type of the successful young New Yorker, no different in make up from a lot of them. In Wall street he is always tremendously busy. When he hasn't enough there to keep him busy he goes home, but there's most always enough to occupy his time. When he wants to see a man he goes out and finds him and there is nothing of the aristocrat about him. He is expected now to devote his entire time to the rounding out of his cherished "Greater Missouri Pacific" scheme. This system will include besides the Missouri Pacific, the Western Maryland, the Washash, the Denver & Rio Grande, the Texas Pacific and several minor railroad properties. Eventually it will go to the Pacific coast. The Gould tendency, as it may be called for want of a better term, appears now to be so to arrange the multifarious Gould affairs as to relieve the head of the house, George Gould, of the active responsibilities of management. The present Missouri Pacific is likely to be succeeded by a holding company into which shall be financed the several properties named or all the railroads now grouped under the name of Gould.

Among students of the stock market is it a saying that the opinion of the average Stock Exchange member is worse than none. That's because the opinion of the man on the floor are one-sided and warped. The "room crowd" just now is having a very hard time of it. There is no public against which to trade and it has therefore to trade with itself.

PLAN LEAGUE OF COLLEGE NINES

Athletic Directors of Five of the Big Nine Plan a Championship Series.

Athletic representatives from Chicago, Illinois, Michigan, Wisconsin, and Northwestern met at the Victoria hotel Friday and arranged what to all intents and purposes will be an intercollegiate baseball league. Each team will play three games with each of the others in the combination. Baseball supremacy in the past has been largely a matter of argument because of schedules arranged as best suited the conveniences of the managers. Unless some nine not in the present combination develops unexpected strength, the percentage winner of next spring's schedule will be ranked as the championship club. Those present were Prof. A. A. Stagg and Horace Butterworth of Chicago. George Huff of Illinois, C. H. Kilpatrick of Wisconsin, and Dr. Hollister of Northwestern. Here is the baseball schedule adopted, which will be subject to ratification by the athletic boards of each college.

Dual track games were arranged as follows:
May 9—Illinois at Chicago.
May 16—Wisconsin at Champaign.
May 23—Chicago at Madison.
May 30—Conference meet (probable).

The football situation was slightly cleared up, with the following games in sight:
Oct. 31—Michigan at Minneapolis (contract).
Oct. 31—Chicago-Wisconsin at Milwaukee (suggested by Wisconsin).
Nov. 14—Wisconsin at Ann Arbor (practically agreed).
Nov. 26—Michigan at Chicago.
Nov. 26—Minnesota at Madison.
Minnesota's throwdown of Illinois for Thanksgiving leaves Illinois again guessing for its turkey day game, with two contests in sight. Chicago is left without a game for Nov. 14 if it accepts Wisconsin's proposition, as Wisconsin was generally expected to play on that date. Northwestern has contracts with Wisconsin, Chicago and Illinois, but the dates are unsettled.

LAW DECISIONS

Illegitimate Child—Presence at Trial: In a prosecution for adultery it is not a ground for a new trial that the prosecutrix's father was present in court carrying the baby claimed to be the offspring of the adulterous relations, and that he held it in view of the jury, where its likeness to the defendant might be noted, no objection having been made by the defendant at the time of the trial to such conduct. 70 Southwestern Rep. (Texas, Judge Brooks) 22.

Criminals—Employment of Counsel: In closing his argument in the trial of a criminal case, the prosecuting attorney stated in reference to the prisoner's counsel: "He is one of the shrewdest lawyers in criminal cases you ever saw, and is employed to defend every one who has a bad case, provided they pay. He never works without pay." Held, that although such remarks are improper, standing alone, without further error in the case, they are not ground for reversal of a judgment of conviction. A prisoner has a perfect right to employ such counsel as he sees fit, and that they are able lawyers is not to prejudice his case. 70 Southwestern Rep. (Kentucky, Judge White) 44.

Street Improvements—Removal of Trees

A tree 24 inches in diameter standing two feet within the sidewalk, and forming an obstruction by reason of its location to travel thereon, is subject to removal by a city in the course of proposed improvements within the proper street limits. The sidewalk for the use of the pedestrians is a part of the public street. The proper authorities of incorporated towns and cities have complete control of the streets and their sidewalks for all lawful purposes. 64 Northeastern Rep. (Indiana) 942.

WISCONSIN WEATHER FORECAST
Fair tonight, Tuesday; probably warmer.

HE PETERED OUT

"About ten years ago," says the Emporia, (Kan.) Gazette, "a merchant came here with plenty of money to start a first class dry goods store. He rented one of the best located rooms in town, put in a fresh, clean up-to-date line of dry goods that was good enough for the richest women in town, and wasn't altogether out of reach in price for the poorest, advertised these facts so attractively in the newspapers that he had lots of women wishing every day was pay day. Trade romped his way so lively that he thought of enlarging the front entrance. He was even thought of as a coming competitor of Newman's (Rorabaugh's wasn't there then). His business ran along as smooth as velvet until he went to figuring how much money he would have at the end of the year if he didn't spend any of it for advertising. The advertising discontinued. Shortly after that he found he could get along and wait on the trade with one less clerk."

"In a few months' time his trade had grown enough smaller that three more clerks were discharged. He tried to brace up the business by adding a line of groceries with the dry goods but that didn't work. The next move was to buy a cheaper grade of goods and sell at lower prices but that didn't bring the trade either. His stock at the best wasn't any too good for the town. Between the cheapening of the quality of the goods and the lack of advertising and with a one-horse grocery in the back, the dry goods department fizzled out altogether. He tried to run the grocery on the same methods and had a hard time making enough to pay the help, so disposed of it as quickly as possible. He is now running a small general store that looks like a rest cure with all the patients on a vacation. In the eastern part of the state."—Western Publisher.

The experience of the Emporia man is being repeated by this class of merchants all over the country. They are to be found in every town and city. Men who imagine that because they keep a store and display their name and announcement in a sign over the door, that the public will stampede the place in a rush for goods.

It is a mistaken notion, and is simply the first evidence of dry rot. A man can no more do business successfully for any length of time, without publicity, than he can fly without wings. It may be a satisfaction for him to know that he has a good stock of goods, but he should remember that the public is perfectly willing that he should keep it, unless advised in some way that they are missing an opportunity to better their conditions by buying.

The man who never advertises, is a back number in business, and a city that is loaded up with this class of business men, rapidly goes to seed. The wide awake business man is progressive. He is never satisfied and is constantly reaching out for more business.

It is true that all advertising is not effective, and good money is being wasted every day, by the injudicious use of printers ink. There is just now being published in the metropolitan press, a half page hand bill in red ink which announces the brand of a certain whiskey; giving the date of vintage in bold faced type, and then says: "that's all." That kind of advertising may sell whiskey, but it wouldn't sell anything else. It is worth less than a sign on a pine board, and that was never known to be worth the time spent in painting it.

An advertisement to be effective must say something, and that something must be strong enough to attract people to investigate. It is possible to do this, in any line of business, without slaughtering prices. The right way to advertise is an art that every business man can afford to study. When neglected, his education is deficient and his business suffers in consequence.

A RAILROAD REMINISCENCE.

The report of a day's business on the New York stock exchange when a large block of Northwestern railroad stock was sold for $204 a share reminds the writer of the time when he sold several shares of the same road for $15 a share, and when he accepted two shares in liquidation of a debt of $10 from an absconding debtor. He also remembers when on a reorganization of the company and as capitalization of the stock he matched pennies for a fractional share and lost it without feeling he had parted with anything of any value. The road had been sold twice on foreclosure of its mortgaged bonds. At a latter date he surrendered a $1,000 bond of the company held as a collateral security on a real estate sale on which $90 was due, taking in payment a $150 gold watch in exchange for a $50 silver one. In those early days stock of the company was sold for $5 to $15 a share.

The history of this company from its inception to the commanding position it now holds and the connection of its managers and some of the stockholders with it would be a history of losses and fluctuating fortunes rarely known in the financial world. The senior of the Gazette printed in a newspaper he then owned in a village where a leading projector then lived the proceedings of the first meeting at which the enterprise was launched upon the public. He watched its progress of incorporation through the Wisconsin legislature and chronicled the progress of its construction on a 6-foot gage until adversity overtook it and compelled a change to the standard gage of the country. The projectors designed, if they did not anticipate, making it a controlling road in the West and ultimately reaching the Pacific ocean. A mammoth land grant once passed the U. S. senate and had reached a third reading in the house, where it met an unexpected death by the absence of a powerful friend and the opposition of hostile roads. The act of incorporation started the road from the Illinois state line and terminated it in a Wisconsin town. An act of the Illinois legislature subsequently gave a charter from Chicago to the Wisconsin line. The original charter was amended or extended as necessity required or its interests demanded.

Verily, there are ups and downs in the history of a corporation as well as the life of an individual.—Charles Holt in the Kankakee Gazette.

Mr. Holt will be remembered as the editor and publisher of the Gazette the early days. In a personal letter to a friend, Mr. Holt says:

"The surrender of the $1,000 bond was to Judge Noggle, to whom it had been issued in payment of legal services. The property I sold him was a lot on Jackson street in the rear of the Strasburger property. The $500 watch was a Waltham silver I had bought from Webb and Lee, and the $150 gold one, Noggle had bought in New York before the war, and which I still carry as a standard time-keeper. The fractional certificate was lost to H. S. Shelton in Wollerscroft's restaurant."

Mr. Holt is an encyclopedia in early reminiscences of Janesville, and says if his feet were as good as the rest of his faculties, he should be pleased to stroll over the old stamping ground and renew old acquaintances.

The Northwestern road, at the date when he was interested in it, was known as the Valley railroad. The corporation, both in magnitude and value, has indeed shown wonderful strides since the days referred to.

PUBLICITY

While many bills will be presented to congress, looking to the abolition of what is known as the trust evil, it is extremely doubtful if any thing is accomplished, except along the line of greater publicity. If this is intelligently handled it will prove an efficient remedy, and it is about the only that is practical.

This government cannot afford to hamper capital, whether invested and handled by individuals or corporations, unless it interferes with public well-being. While it is perfectly natural for any one to be envious of success, and to denounce men and corporations which come to the front rapidly, it is not the office of either state or national government to adopt the same spirit and be actuated by it in dealing with the question.

The statement is frequently made, that it ought not to be possible for Carnegie, Morgan, and men of that class, to amass large fortunes in a life time, and that there is something radically wrong with a system of government that permits it.

The men who make this statement are doubtless honest in their convictions, but every last one of them would duplicate the great financiers in method and achievement if they possessed the ability.

If there is any class of men who are a benefit to the masses, in this country, it is the class who possess the brain, the nerve, and the ability to overcome all obstacles and with faces in the front, defying failure, and laughing at impossibilities work out a destiny that blesses humanity at every step of the journey. These men furnish employment to an army of people, and from the ranks of this army are constantly being recruited, the self-respecting independent citizen.

The men who lead this great army make money. Why shouldn't they? No one losses by the operation, and thousands win prizes through opportunities that otherwise would not be provided.

Congress will not be unwise enough to hamper freedom of action when it does not interfere with the public good.

The public should be warned of the danger of investing in watered stocks by publicity. The tendency of prosperous times is always speculative. It was easy to create capital on paper and easy to sell this kind of stock. The Wall Street Journal sizes up the situation correctly when it says:

"A corporation that cannot stand publicity as to the details and circumstances of its capitalization and as to its profits and the state of its finances cannot fairly invite the public to become partners in its operations. A corporation created by the state cannot fairly object to control by its creator. We see no escape from these conclusions and, therefore, we think that the true remedy for the evils that exist and the true preventive of evil in the future lies in publicity."

Mr. Bryan takes issue with ex-President Cleveland, and reads him out of the democratic party. Mr. Bryan may be good authority, but the faction of the party he represents will have plenty of time to plant corn, and raise a disturbance, before it has a chance to handle the reins of government.

If the farmers escape the one mill tax, and the railroads the $1,000,000 excess, the game warden may be obliged to take a vacation to relieve the treasury.

There are some occupations that pay better than the office of governor, from a financial standpoint, but money is nothing when compared to principles.

If the provisions of the message are carried out, there will be no occasion for complaint of injustice in the island of Cuba.

The press of the country is practically a unit in endorsing the sentiment of the president's message.

It cost the governor about $7,000 to be nominated. Principles come high, but we must have them.

The Lincoln hotel in Chicago was simply a sample of many similar fire traps in the Windy City.

PRESS COMMENT.

Marquette Eagle: This is a good time of year for people who travel on the lake, to travel on land for a change.

Marquette Eagle: The governor's attention is called to the conversation by the president of the United States, and is advised to go and do likewise.

La Crosse Chronicle: The ladies' furnishing departments are advertising something good in hose. This is doubly appropriate in the Christmas season.

Neenah Times: The congressional bill that buzzed in the ears of Thomas E. Torison of Manitowoc, who desired to succeed J. H. Davidson, cost him $315.

Milwaukee News: If Governor La Follette will jump on the corporations good and hard maybe they will try and get rid of him, too, by nominating him for the vice presidency.

Chippewa Sentinel: General Bragg started for Cuba with the bray of the hugh, and he returns to the music of the pig tail whistle. So it be with all betrayers of political trust.

Milwaukee Journal: A man with a wild imagination might picture Governor La Follette as Santa Claus, wearing a rabbit skin cap, and dropping the senatorship into the stocking of John C. Spooner.

Milwaukee News: In Racine, "Jack the Huggler" wears women's clothes, and in Kenosha—the "society" boys—the girls dress in male garb and escort other girls to their homes. Fashion in dress is evidently becoming erratic.

Fond du Lac Commonwealth: The Manitowoc man who walked thirty miles as a precautionary measure against spreading the small pox with which he was afflicted, deserves a pension. Too often the welfare of the public in matters of this sort, is the last instead of the first thought in mind.

Appleton Post: The Kaukauna Sun says that Hon. Edward Decker is the logical candidate for congress on the democratic ticket two years hence. Mr. Decker, however, may be unable to discover any logical reason why he should accept the nomination when that time comes around.

Appleton Crescent: A reader asks authority for the statement that lead pencils are sold to foreign dealers for one-half what they are priced to American dealers. The figures are taken from the catalogues of the Dixon Pencil company, which is one of the four concerns which monopolize the trade in this country.

Green Bay Gazette: Wisconsin congressmen have not given up hope of securing the location of the proposed naval training station for the Wisconsin shore of Lake Michigan. Congressman Cooper proposes to have it located at either Racine or Kenosha, while Congressman Otjen will make an attempt to secure it for Milwaukee.

Oshkosh Northwestern: Heaven save us from what we are coming to in the line of literature, according to one of the "look notes" in a recent issue of the Chicago Record-Herald. It says: "Among the books announced for early spring publication are 'Love Letters to a Grass Widow,' 'Letters of a Sophomore to His Father,' 'Letters of a Tattooed Man' and 'Love Letters of a Dry Goods Clerk.'"

Two Rivers Chronicle: The legislature of Wisconsin should not consider that its duty to the people will be accomplished by the re-election unconditionally of John C. Spooner to the United States senate. There is a little matter of railroad taxation that it will have to look after and arrange before its entire duty to the people will be performed.

Milwaukee Wisconsin: A Racine prohibitionist "who also ran" seeks to get into the legislature because his democrat and republican competitors—each of whom received many more votes than he—happen to be tied. He will be told that while it may not be clear which of the other candidates his fellow citizens desired to represent them, it is obvious that they did not want him.

Eau Claire Leader: The difference manifested by the people of the state to the opinions of Mr. Strange in regard to the election of Senator Spooner has had the effect of putting a quietus on that aspirant for public notoriety. He found that he was wasting his fragrance upon an unappreciative crowd and retired into the shades of private life. Contempt pierces even the shell of the tortoise.

NOT EVEN THE KISS

Washington Girl Who Broke Three Ribs Dodging Gets Nothing in In the case of Miss Jennie Keller against Henry Borrell for $5,000 for having broken three of her ribs while trying to keep Borrell from kissing her, a Reading, Pa., jury evidently decides that a young woman should not dodge a kiss at the risk of a life and limb. To my thinking at least, this is the significance of the verdict. Poor Miss Keller to whistle for her $5,000 if she is that traditionally unlucky thing, a whistling woman. It's decidedly pathetic, isn't it, when a girl thus gets no kiss, no money, no sympathy. Her experience and her three broken ribs are all that Miss Keller seems to have gained in this instance.—Washington Times.

Brain Leaks Hope always sees a light ahead. Can't never did; Will never failed. Godly youth brings a serene old age. The laughter of children is the music of the spheres. Everyday is Thanksgiving day with the true man and woman. Wrong may triumph for a day, but right enjoys the eternal victory. The whisper of scandal is heard further than the peans of praise. Some men have to boast of their Christianity before any body can notice it.

Some people open their doors and invite the thief in, then complain because they are robbed.

Too many people have a habit of whispering their thanks and megaphoning their complaints.

SKILL SHOWN BY LITTLE PEOPLE

EXHIBIT OF CHILDREN'S WORK AT TEACHERS' MEETING

ATTRACTED MUCH ATTENTION

Basket Making and Rug Weaving,
Drawing and Paper Cutting
Taught in Schools.

People who are interested in the work of the public schools would have found much to interest and surprise them in the exhibit of industrial work which was held in connection with the annual meeting of the Rock County Teachers' association at the High school building Saturday.

The exhibit was under the charge of Miss Lida B. Earhart, conductor of the first grade at the Whitewater Normal school. It was displayed in the biological laboratory and was an illustration of what little children can be trained to do in work which will keep them interested in school as well as serve as a valuable educator.

An interesting display of the large recitation room was filled with the interesting exhibit. That part of it which represented Miss Earhart's work included the first and second grades. The regular work of the pupils was illustrated in paper cutting, color work, drawings and clay modeling. For instance Thanksgiving was represented with the turkey cut out of paper, the Puritan Bible, the Puritan hat, the Mayflower and the wooden shoe which related to their visit to Holland. In the same way the reading of Hiawatha was illustrated by the wigwam executed both in color work and in clay modeling.

The work of these two grades included imaginative designing, illustrated in yellow Jock-o-lanterns on brown fences representing Halloween, and quaint goblin like drawings, as well as the nature work and the formal drawings.

Rugs and Indian Baskets. Miss Anna Cook, supervisor of industrial work in the Whitewater graded schools, had an extensive exhibit of drawings of original patterns for gingham, paper cutting, weaving, needle work and reed and raffa basket work as well as some artistic water color paintings. The exhibit included some handsome rugs, woven by the students by hand, some very fine needle work and a splendid collection of Indian baskets.

Beloit and Janesville Work. Miss Hannah Larson, of Beloit, also had a fine exhibit of the primary work in paper cutting, weaving and basket work and there was an extensive exhibit of drawing, designing, water color, paintings and clay modeling by the pupils of the Janesville graded schools. This exhibit was especially artistic and included some handsome photograph frames, doll cases, calendars and souvenir cards and books that would be a credit to much older artists.

BLIND STUDENTS TO HAVE VACATION

State School Will Close for Eleven Days, Including Christmas and New Years.

Students at the State School for the Blind are anticipating with pleasure the holiday vacation which will be eleven days long, school not beginning again until the Monday after New Years. Owing to the fact that the holidays come on Thursday and that it would hardly pay to require the students to return to their work on Friday, the vacation is a few days longer than is customary. This will have an influence on the number who will spend the holidays at home and the majority of the students are already planning for the trip and the vacation.

The school year will also be one week longer than it has been in years, closing June 17. This is in compliance with the letter of the law which requires that the state schools shall open on the second Wednesday in September and continue for forty weeks. It has been the custom, however, both at Delavan and in the Institute for the Deaf and Dumb and in this city at the School for the Blind to close the second Wednesday in June. This year, for the first time, the closing day of the year will come on the third Wednesday.

CLUB WOMEN AT A BOOK SOCIAL

INTERESTING GATHERING AT THE HOME OF MRS. HELMS.

FOR THE PHILOMATHIAN CLUB

Members Represented Books, Engaged in Amusing Contests, and Enjoyed a Dainty Luncheon.

Club women are coming more and more to appreciate and emphasize the social feature of club life and in this city no woman's organization does it more delightfully than the Philomathian club. Twenty ladies compose its membership and while study and improvement are the principal objects of the club, added interest is given to the work by the sociability between the members upon which the club pleasantly insists.

Besides the social hour, which is a part of every meeting, the club holds two gatherings each year which are purely social in nature. The club is divided into two sections alphabetically and each division entertains, taking charge of one of the socials.

A Book Social. The first of these two social meetings was held on Saturday afternoon and was especially interesting and enjoyable being a book party. Mrs. Walter Helms extended the hospitality of her home to the club and a delightful afternoon was spent in the pleasant parlors at 213 South Main street.

Impersonated Books. A special pleasure came from the fact that the club circle was complete, every member being present. Each lady represented some book, her costume or some feature of it illustrating the title. Much amusement was occasioned by the attempt to identify the different volumes in this unique library of individuals.

Guessing Contests. Bookishness, in very palatable form, characterized the entire afternoon. An entertaining contest required the guests to guess the titles of books from representative pictures displayed throughout the parlors. Mrs. Elizabeth Phelps and Mrs. R. R. Powell proved most proficient in the contest and drew lots for the prize, a handsome book, Mrs. Phelps winning. A blank book, bearing the inscription, "What I know about books," was awarded as a consolation prize to Mrs. Georgia Hyde.

Story and Song. Another entertaining feature of the afternoon was the reading of a story by Mrs. Helms, the blank spaces being filled with appropriate titles of books at the suggestion of the guests. Mrs. Hyde played some piano selections beautifully and the entire company enjoyed singing several songs together.

Pretty Souvenirs. At five o'clock an elegant three course luncheon was prettily served. Artistic menu cards decorated with a pretty floral design in water colors, were placed at each cover. Mrs. C. V. Kerch being the designer of the pretty souvenirs. The cards bore in quaint lettering the following:

Menu: Potato Patties, Rolls, Salted peanuts, Pickles, Coffee, Fruit Salad, Wafers, Lemon Ice Cake, A Clever Toast.

At the conclusion of the luncheon Mrs. H. D. Mordock was called on to give a toast to books and she responded in a very happy manner, there being an amusing vein of humor in her remarks. The entire social was a pleasant success and reflected to their credit of the ten members who were hostesses and to the club social committee under whose direction it was given. This committee includes Mesdames Walter Helms, E. D. Roberts, F. H. Koebelin, C. V. Kerch and A. C. Thorpe.

German Supper is enjoyed by all. Degree of Honor Ladies Were Liberal Patronized Last Saturday Evening.

German suppers are always a popular attraction in this city so it is no wonder that the supper served by Laurel Lodge No. 2, Degree of Honor, in East Side Odd Fellows' hall on Saturday night was a great success.

The menu included a large number of characteristic German dishes, all of them appetizing, and many people to whom they were a novelty partook of them with even more relish than the patrons who claim Germany as their mother country. Much of the success of the supper was due to the fact that Mrs. Michael Buoh was in charge and she ably maintained the reputation which she established for herself many years ago by her skill in cooking.

A sale was held in connection with the supper and many useful articles and dainty specimens of fancy needlework found ready purchasers. The sale and supper was given under the direction of the work committee of the lodge, assisted by Mrs. Buoh.

Mr. Kniff having been a patient sufferer with the uncurable disease for some time. Bravely and cheerfully he made his hopeless fight for life and renewed health and two months ago he went to Texas. INTERURBAN CAR RUNS INTO CITY

STOPS AT FRANKLIN HOTEL UNTIL TRACK IS OPENED.

IT IS A HANDSOME VEHICLE

Workmen Here This Afternoon to Get the Track Open for the Prince of Pilsen.

This morning the first car over the Beloit, Delavan Lake and Janesville road to run up into the city arrived about eleven o'clock. The car came up as far as the Franklin hotel and was stopped at that point on account of the track not being clear above that point. The track cleaning force which was at work opening the line all day Sunday had not finished their work further than the Franklin hotel so that the car ended its initial trip at that point.

Officials Aboard. General Manager H. H. Clough, R. W. Hill and several other officials of the road were aboard the car. They were surprised that the road was not open for traffic and after investigating the cause of the delay started on the return trip to Beloit to get the laborers to complete the work of clearing the track so that the cars could be run around the loop.

Second Car Arrives. The second car with a number of laborers arrived in the city shortly

KILLS AMERICAN AT CAPE PALMAS

MINOR DETAILS ARE LACKING

Report of the Affair is Meager, but it is Claimed That the Official Will Set Up a Plea of Self-Defense in the Coming Trial.

New York, Dec. 8.—A copy of the Living Church Chronicle, published at Cape Palmas, west coast of Africa, dated Oct. 16, 1902, which has just been received in this city, brings the startling information that the United States Minister to Liberia, Dr. J. R. A. Crossland, shot at Monrovia on Oct. 6, an electrical engineer named Faulkner, formerly of Brooklyn, fatally wounding him. According to the meager data given in the Chronicle, which is a religious publication, edited by S. D. Ferguson, Jr., a son of the missionary Bishop of the Episcopal church in West Africa, Minister Crossland resided with Faulkner and his wife and the relations were apparently amicable, the three having attended church together the Sunday previous to the shooting.

Claims Self-Defense.
On Monday, Oct. 6, an altercation took place between Faulkner and the Minister, resulting in the shooting. It was intimated that a plea of self-defense would be put in in behalf of the Minister.

Dr. Crossland was appointed Minister Resident and Consul General to the republic of Liberia in December, 1901, by President Roosevelt. Dr. Crossland is a negro. He comes from Missouri, and was active in politics, having won considerable distinction as an orator as well as being a physician in active practice. He is still a young man and his appointment was attributed in large measure to the influence of Secretary Hitchcock.

Dead Man a Promoter.

Thomas J. R. Faulkner, it is supposed, is the Faulkner who was shot. He was a former resident of Brooklyn and an electrical engineer by trade. He had great faith in the future development of the resources of Liberia, and had made several trips to the west coast to introduce a telegraph and telephone system. He was also instrumental in organizing the Liberian Improvement company in this city for the purpose of carrying out his plans in this direction. A telephone line has been constructed and is in practical operation between Monrovia, the capital, and points in the interior.

On his last visit to the United States, about a year ago, Faulkner was married, and on his return to the west coast he took his wife with him.

FEAR CAUSES LOSS OF SPEECH

Young Man Lost in Idaho Mine Loses Control of Tongue.

Canonsburg, Pa., Dec. 8.—As the result of an experience in a mining camp in the West, Howard Cummins, a young man of Houston, has entirely lost his speech. With another young man he went into a gold mine, and after wandering about for a day and a night they searched for the exit, but in vain. Finally they were rescued, but from fear or some other cause young Cummins has since been unable to speak.

THOMAS NAST GOES TO REWARD

Noted Caricaturist Dies of Yellow Fever at Guayaquil.

New York, Dec. 8.—Thomas Nast, known as "the father of American caricature," died at Guayaquil, Ecuador, to which place he went last July as consul general. The cause of his death was yellow fever, by which he was attacked only three days before.

Because of the nature of the disease, unusual haste in the funeral arrangements was necessary, internment taking place late the same afternoon, according to advices received here. Wrapped in the Stars and Stripes, for which the artist had done valiant service with his pen and brush, the coffin was borne to the grave attended by the governor, the consular corps, the American colony and many friends made by the consul general during his short residence in Guayaquil. The only service held was in the cemetery, where the British consul recited a prayer.

Air Propeller in Operation.

By far the most novel exhibit shown at the recent German motor launch exhibition on the Wannsee, at Berlin, was a boat depending for its propulsion upon an air propeller, thus presenting in concrete an idea which for the last ten years has been periodically bobbing up.

BALL LEAGUE IS NOT VERY SECURE

Revolution Planned by Five of the Big Universities in the National Game.

Revolutions are virtually an unknown quantity in college athletics. The development of inter-university sport has been even and methodical with few splurges or hitches. But scholastic baseball seems about to take a more vigorous forward jump than has been characteristic. At least the conference of the Big Nine, or rather "Big Five," in Chicago last Friday appears to presage some such activity.

Chicago, Illinois, Michigan, Northwestern and Wisconsin plan to form a league. If it were not for the tentative acceptance of the proposition discussed by Michigan, the league would be already formed. Its name, subject to the approval of the board of control, is to be the College Baseball league.

Percentage Comparison.
According to the plans mapped out each of these five schools is to play a definite number of games with each other. By a decimal comparison of the results, the usual indefiniteness regarding the season's championship will be abolished. Step One toward a revolution.

Of course this will leave an opportunity for another point of contention. Only five of the Big Nine are included. And there are several other institutions besides these four which are shut out, which are at least comers, if they have not already arrived. Endless disputes can easily arise if one of the Big Five claims championship. Nebraska has been making a strenuous appeal for recognition. What will she say to this incipient baseball trust?

Magnifies Baseball.
Baseball will be given a proportionately greater place in college circles since it will involve a more extended schedule. That is the basis on which Michigan has not yet given a definite reply. The Ann Arbor faculty has vigorously opposed allowing a more liberal list of contests.

Illinois is making a brave stand toward an open recognition of vacation professionalism. Their appeal is that a student be allowed to play unrestrictedly on baseball teams during the summer. In spirit this means little. In the letter it means a good deal. That is to say, students are playing summer baseball, have played it, and will play it, but their remuneration has been accomplished by subterfuge. If Illinois' proposition is taken up it will be open and above-board.

Sincere Amateurism.
As matters now stand an amateur in deed as well as word is an anomaly. Save when the athlete is not worth pay. And in that case does not enter into this decision. Few would be so rash as to assert that there is a college baseball player in the country who has not at some time received money for playing. But that does not change his standing. A few witnesses, an affidavit or two, and his credentials are recognized. The question is whether this thinking at bare faced facts helps the situation. Why not allow professionalism during the summer so long as it cannot be stopped. Step Two toward a revolution.

Many the Problems.
Numerous others recommendations have been made which seem to indicate that a long advance is at hand. A few of them are given below. Chicago asks that a student who goes from one college to another be allowed to participate in athletics the first year, provided he did not the year previous in the college from which he came.

Wisconsin suggests that no student be eligible who before entering college has received any emolument for taking part in athletics. Purdue desires that preliminary practice be held on the college grounds. Suggestion is made by Minnesota that a more stringent interpretation be placed on the rule that athletes be bona fide students.

Prince of Pilsen

The setting of the first act of "The Prince of Pilsen," Pixley & Luder's latest and most successful musical comedy is laid in the courtyard of the Hotel International at Nice, France. The hotel is on an eminence overlooking the sea. To the stage right, in the background winds in and out among the foothills of the Alpes Maritimes, the famous Cornichean road, one of the great highways which owes its origin to the military genius of Julius Caesar. In the direct background, looking off and down, is the Mediterranean which is at the same time the despair and the delight of all artists, for the color when transferred to the canvas is never the same beautiful blue. In the distance, far to the stage left, nestled down by the sea, is one of the handsome villas for which that portion of the Riviera is noted which as the dusk comes on looks like one of the small lighthouses which guide the mariner in safety to port. The costumes are as handsome and picturesque as the scenery and the company in strict keeping with both, for it is said to be the largest organization in this kind of entertainment that has ever toured the country but as the "The Prince of Pilsen" is shortly to go on Broadway for an extended run the original organization is being kept intact. "The Prince of Pilsen" will be at the Myers Grand, Wednesday, the advance sale opening tomorrow morning.
